The Carmel Pine Cone Cymbal

Members of the midwinter graduating class of 1943 who received diplomas at Carmel High School last Friday: Bill Christerson, DeWitt Appleton, Jr., Vincent Torras, Jr., Tom Berry, Phoebe Merchant, Meta Gossler and Frances Passailaigue. Torras, Berry and Appleton are waiting for call in the Merchant Marine. Christerson has enlisted for naval pilot training.

Legislature Pays Tribute To Martinez

The California State Legislature, meeting in its 55th session on January 19th in Sacramento, passed by a unanimous standing vote a resolution paying tribute to Xavier Martinez whose death here two weeks ago was a source of sorrow to art lovers throughout the country as well as to people of Carmel.

The resolution:

"Beneath the gently sheltering trees of Carmel-by-the-Sea, home of artists and lovers of art, Xavier Martinez has come to his final rest.

"In him and in his work met the art traditions of both Europe and America, for he was born in

Tough Stranger Yells At Police Department

A raucous voice filtering through the dimmed-out windows of the Council Room Tuesday night startled passersby on Dolores street.

"Straighten up — watch those heels!"

Knowing that the regular and special police force were holding a meeting upstairs citizens wondered sympathetically from where had come this very tough character that was dressing down Carmel's favorite ticket hander outers.

Investigation revealed that the tough character was just a noise on a sound track of a film the FBI had sent here in connection with the police school Chief Roy Fraties is conducting since his return from the FBI Police Academy in Washington, D. C.

The subject was the technique of making arrests, and as an olio following the film, Fraties and Officer Frank Hay demonstrated how to disarm a criminal, Hay playing the villain.

J. W. Getsinger brought down the high school movie projector to run off the film.

IN NAVY P.O.

Members of the Carmel Post Office force, who have gone into the service, get around. H. R. Studevant is in the Navy Post Office at Auckland, New Zealand. Maurice Stoney fir the present is in the Navy Post Office in San Francisco.

MANY THANKS

A heart-warming example of neighborliness was evident in the response to our appeal last week to subscribers to bring into the office their copies of the Pine Cone Cymbal of Jan. 15 issue because we had run short and a number of our readers wanted extra copies to send away to relatives and friends. Not only have Carmel people brought in their papers, but out of town subscribers have gone to the trouble of wrapping up their copies and mailing them to us.

Thanks to this kindness, we have enough papers now to give to those who want them.

Vinnie Salgado Knew California In Golden Era

One of the last figures of the romantic period of California's early history passed away last week in Carmel.

Vincentia Salgado was born of Spanish parents almost one hundred years ago in San Luis Obispo. She was baptized in the old Mission there in 1845 and her godfather was Jesu Pico, the last Mexican governor of California.

Despite her many years, she could review from personal experience much of California's early history. When a small child she was brought to Monterey by her godfather and placed in the first Catholic girl's school in California—the Dominican Convent of St. Catherine which stood on the site the Hotel San Carlos now occupies. She loved to talk of the long journey in an ox-cart over El Camino Real, at that time but a

Lt. Craig, U.S.N. Teaches Last Class At Carmel High

Students in Donald M. Craig's Spanish and journalism classes at the Carmel high school had a hard time on Wednesday and Thursday of this week keeping their minds on nouns, verbs and such. For during that brief period until his successor could arrive, Lieutenant junior class Craig, U.S.N., went about winding up his duties on the faculty resplendent in his new uniform.

A native of San Francisco, Lt. Craig has been a member of the high school teaching staff since its organization, a specialist in social studies, Spanish and all branches of athletics. Previous to his coming here, he received his A.B. at St. Mary's College, his M.A. at the University of California and coached football in both Yuba City and Porterville. His preparation for a doctorate in Latin-American relations has been interrupted by enlistment in the Navy.

Lt. Craig leaves today for the East, where he will take his in-

John Jordan, First Mayor, Dies of Heart Attack

John B. Jordan died suddenly of a heart attack at 11:40 Thursday morning at his home on North Casanova street.

Wednesday in apparent good health, he was exchanging good-mornings with friends at the post office and along Ocean avenue, a familiar and beloved figure who since village days had worked to develop the loveliness of environment and the abundant way of life that Carmel enjoys today.

Greenwald New Chief Clerk of Rationing Board

J. C. Greenwald has been asked to serve as chief clerk in the Monterey Peninsula Rationing Board Office at Colton Hall subject to his release from the army, it was announced this week.

A resident of Pacific Grove, and for a number of years in business in Monterey, Greenwald is well known on the Peninsula. He replaces James H. Brand who resigned last week to take a civilian position at Fort Ord.

Working under C. M. Goldsworthy, chairman of the Peninsula Rationing board, Greenwald will manage the office, and direct the activities of the five paid members of the office staff in filing material and assembling information for the various rationing panels.

Grace Lowers Assigned to Over-Seas Duty

The Carmel USO is losing Miss Grace Lowers, who has served efficiently as its director for the past year and a half. She leaves next week for Washington, D. C., there to receive her assignment for overseas duty.

Miss Lowers came to Carmel from Cleveland, Ohio, a year ago

NAVY BLUE ISSUE

The Del Monte Pre-Flight school is to be commissioned formally next Saturday, and in honor of the occasion, and as a salute to the Navy Officers who have come to live among us and to the cadets, the Pine Cone Cymbal is putting out next Friday a navy blue issue, printed in Navy blue ink, with a Pat Cunningham linoleum cut of Commander G. W. Steele on the cover. Inside will be pictures of the officers who head the various departments of the school, word sketches and feature stories of all the officer personnel, and of course, detailed information about how the cadets will receive their training at Del Monte.

In this manner we hope to convey Carmel's welcome to the Navy.

Telephone Survey Starts in Grow- Your-Own Project

Following up the success of the first meeting of Carmel people with the Agriculture, Extension Bureau representatives several weeks ago, the next move in the Grow-Your-Own Food movement, according to Helen Poulsen, Carmel chairman, is a survey of local weeds and resources.

Next week, volunteers at the Civilian Defense office will telephone Carmel householders in the hope of learning their reaction to the movement, if they already have gardens or are raising chickens or rabbits, if they would be interested in doing so, if they have space and suitable soil for gardening, and what help and advice they would care to receive from the Agricultural Extension Bureau.

In parts of town where lack of space, poor soil conditions or excessive shade make gardening impractical, community gardens on vacant lots are suggested, neighbors sharing the work and the produce.

Bringing Home the Cows from Pasture—

Everybody is getting excited about raising chickens, rabbits and vegetables to beat the threatened food shortage, which is very commendable indeed, and the practice so gained may come in handy in the future when the shortage ceases to be a threat and becomes a reality, but at the present moment eggs and vegetables are readily available here and meat though not plentiful, can be had at any time if one isn't too insistent on getting just the cut indicated for that day on the menu drawn up at the first of the week. But there is a genuine shortage and it is with us now — butter. And since the agricultural extension bureau hasn't got around to telling us what to do about it, the Pine Cone Cymbal retired to its Dark Brown Study last night and came out with the solution.

As any good housewife can tell you, all she needs is a pint of sour whipping cream and an egg beater to have a neat little pat of but-

SUNSET SCHOOL NEWS

The Bugle

The "Barry - Doerr" Seventh Grade has started a class newspaper. On Friday the twenty-second the first issue came out with the election news. On Monday the twenty-fifth an extra came out about the run-overs for the offices. We hope to put out a two page paper every Friday.—DuVal Roberts, 7th Grade.

Final Election at Sunset

Last Monday the final election for student body officers was held at Sunset. The lucky people are: President, Jackie Work; Vice-president, Patricia Timbers; Secretary, Betty Dougherty; Business Manager, Linne Bardarson.

In a few weeks we will have a student body meeting to install the new officers into their new jobs.—Owen Greenan, 7th Grade.

Report Cards

At last the horrible news came. On January 25, 1943, report cards came out, which nobody likes. That day the pupils of Sunset School walked reluctantly home with their report cards, thinking of what was going to meet them when they got home. It was horrible to tell. I have inside dope.—Frank Timmins, 7th Grade.

The Storm

When the lights went out during the storm we had to eat by candle light.—Dickie Swanson, 2nd Grade.

A tree just outside my window fell. It was lucky for me it fell the other way.—Jerry Tinsey, 2nd Grade.

Some friends of ours had a tree fall on their house, and they came to stay at our house.—Ronnie Miller, 2nd Grade.

A tree fell across our driveway and I was late to school. I live on Jack's Peak and it is too far to walk.—Douglas Smith, 2nd Grade.

I went to the beach and the wind blew my hat off. I had to chase it all over.—Dick Wyatt.

I went down to the beach to see what the storm had done. There was a dead seal washed up on the sand and lots of seaweed. The sand was washed off the big rocks.—Bob Eggleston, 2nd Grade.

It rained and rained!

All over town.

It rained and rained!

And trees blew down.

—Miss Schnabel's First Grade.

I went to school in Athens, Georgia. It was pretty nice there, but there was an awful lot of traffic. I like Carmel, but I get tired pumping my bicycle up the hills.—Gardner Patrick, 1st Grade.

Grand Canyon Suite

(This is the picture that came to Joe's mind as he listened to "Cloudburst" from Ferde Grofe's "Grand Canyon Suite.")

Raining, pouring. Hear it roaring! A big storm came up and then the storm went down. A rainbow came as the sun shone through, and a little rain is raining. You can hear the hoof-beats of burros as they hurry as fast as they can.—Joe Diekenper, 4th Grade.

War Stamps for Victory

Mrs. Uzzell's sixth grade is very proud of the record they have made buying war stamps and bonds. Every week we sell war stamps. If everyone in the room buys a stamp, we receive a victory "V" for our door.

When we first started selling war stamps we got only about 60 percent. Then the lucky week arrived. We got our first victory "V". We have received a "V" every week since then. The only way we got our "V's" was by the co-operation of every boy and girl in the room.—Betty Lou Cochran, Patricia Timbers, 6th Grade.

As a result of the good advice—"Dig into your piggy-banks and dig out your pennies," Sunset School children have brought 1,760 pennies for War Stamps during the last two weeks. Whether they came from piggy-banks or not, they are here to help furnish equipment and ammunition for our boys "over there."—Colin Kuster, 7th Grade.

Mrs. Uzzell's sixth grade gave a very nice program at our Student Body meeting last Friday. The program was about the flags of the United Nations. Speeches were given about the flags. Roland Calder gave a speech in Chinese when he told about the flag of China. The whole program was very good.—Biz Carr, 6th Grade.

The fifth and sixth grade voted for new class officers. Bob Brown is now our president. Anton Janda is vice president, Sheila O'Brien is secretary and Jimmy Hare is treasurer.—Peter Krupocki, 6th Grade.

VICTORY BOOK CAMPAIGN

Millions of books are needed, millions of books of highest quality.

The men in the service are not asking for the forgotten junk in attic or cellar. They want the books anyone would like to keep and reread. These men are daily defying danger and even death so that Americans may continue to possess (among other precious privileges) the books that they want to read and to own. We want

Special Delivery Is Discontinued At Carmel P.O.

The home delivery of special mail will be discontinued: "For the present, not necessarily for the duration," Fred Mylar, assistant postmaster, announced yesterday.

"The labor situation made it necessary for Joe's Taxi to give up the contract, and the tire and gas situation makes it unprofitable for anyone else to handle it," Mylar said. "The messenger gets nine cents a letter, and it costs that much to deliver it in a car."

After Joe Olivera stopped delivery, Gay Kuster with the help of Mrs. R. Ellis Roberts and Mrs. K.P. Goringe, tried to keep it going for several months.

Now recipients of special mail will be notified by telephone and special mail will be worked into the boxes ahead of other mail. From ten to twenty special delivery letters pass through the post office daily.

All Hands Work to Make Del Monte Ready for Launching

Alterations and reconstruction that will make the luxury liner Del Monte a sea-going war craft started this week with Lieut. W. K. Bowden, First Lieutenant of the Navy Pre-Flight School, in charge.

The contract for the work was awarded to Stolte, Inc., of Pacific Grove and supervising the activities is Mr. W. H. Rowe from the Bureau of Yards and Docks, Twelfth Naval District, San Francisco. Pre-Flight School officials hope to have the work completed in six weeks.

Forty-five officers, under the command of Captain G. W. Steele, USN (Ret.), are aboard at present and approximately 150 more will arrive by the time the school reaches its complement of 1,500 cadets.

The first battalion of Naval Aviation Cadets is scheduled to arrive aboard February 4 to begin three months of strenuous athletic training, military maneuvers and academic work as the first step in the 12-month procedure of becoming commissioned airmen. The second battalion is scheduled to arrive February 18 and each two weeks following a new battalion will come aboard.

Reconstruction work now in progress includes the making of the Del Monte theater into a gymnasium; transforming the gun club into an athletic equipment room complete with showers; making the Bali room into a gymnasium for boxing and wrestling; the Garden Room into a disbursing office; repairing the swimming pool and installing showers; and transforming the shops into offices.—Lieut. Elizabeth O'Connell Joins Red Cross Nursing Service

By FRANCES DOUD

Newest recruit from Carmel in the American Red Cross Army Nursing Service is Miss Elizabeth O'Connell, now at the Fort Ord station hospital with a rank of 2nd Lieutenant.

Miss O'Connell has been a resident of Carmel for the past nine years, residing at the Carmel Mission parish house with her brother, Rev. Michael D. O'Connell ever since he came here. A native of Ireland and still a citizen of that country, Miss — or rather Lt. O'Connell received her nurse's training in Cork. After coming to this country she took a post graduate course at St. Mary's in San Francisco. Since coming to the Peninsula she has been a special duty nurse and also served recently in the Sisters' Hospital in Santa Cruz.

It is to be hoped that the splendid example set by this fine nurse (who although not a citizen did not hesitate to offer her services to this country) will be followed, and soon, by all nurses on this Peninsula who are eligible and certainly by those whose native land it is.

$4,000 Raised by "Bundles" Groups

By MRS. R. ELLIS ROBERTS

Bundles - United America & Britain is happy to open the New Year by announcing to their loyal friends and helpers in Carmel and Monterey that in 1942 Bundles for America has raised nearly two thousand dollars and Bundles for Britain has gone just over the two thousand mark. Of this success both societies and Carmel may well be proud.

Perhaps this would be a good time to clear up possible misconceptions about the union of the Societies. One is that the proceeds from the sale of any donation to the Thrift Shop, or any cheque given to the funds of Bundles-United must be equally divided between Bundles for America and Bundles for Britain. Bundles-United is glad to do that, and feels that it is a practical symbol of the unity of the English-speaking Allies in the war and of our hope that that union will grow stronger when peace comes and that it may be a pattern towards which all the nations of the world can strive, till we have achieved that United States of the World where war will be as unlikely as it is now between New York and Illinois. But, if any supporter of Bundles-United feels a special interest or sympathy in any of the aims of either Society, money, or the proceeds of sales of articles given to the Thrift Shop, may be earmarked for that cause.

For instance, in Mrs. Charles Morgan's talk on "My American Friends" she told of her sister's work among the London slum children sent, wearing their poor city clothes and shoes, to the wild, wet valleys of wintry Wales. And of what it meant to them to receive warm clothes and stockings and stout shoes from Bundles for Britain to wear on their three miles of muddy walk to school. A listener generously sent $50 for these children, and, so sensible is the Head Administration of Bundles for Britain, this money can be earmarked for the very purpose the donor wished for it. Each month Bundles for Britain and Bundles for America let their Branches know what are the special requirements at that moment of Great Britain or of the American Navy or Merchant Marine, and the branches can choose the help that seems to them the most important.

This is a real satisfaction. This year the Carmel Branch of Bundles for Britain sent money especially to the bombed London hospitals, for new and reconditioned surgical instruments, and for help to the bombed areas of London's East End slums.

Recently Bundles for America reported that, in many southern towns and in tiny villages in the

Peninsula Artists Receive Awards at Santa Cruz Show

The 14th Annual Statewide Art Exhibition conducted by the Santa Cruz Art League and open to the public from January 31 to February 15, inclusive, is of special interest to Peninsula residents this year. Not only is it an outstanding collection of oils and water colors, but among the artists to whom awards have been voted by the jury composed of Howard Smith, A.N.A., of Carmel, Miss Jennie A. Moore of Santa Cruz and Mrs. R. Cameron of San Francisco, are names familiar to the Peninsula.

Arthur Hill Gilbert of Monterey won 2nd Honorable Mention in oils for his "Autumn Sycamores" a landscape depicting El Toro Creek, and 3rd Honorable Mention went to Frank Myers of Pacific Grove, member of the Carmel Art Association, for his seascape, "Sunset Path." The first prize of $50 for water colors was won by James Fitzgerald, formerly of the Carmel Art Association, now a resident of Monterey, for his "Snow, Ice and Water" and the second prize of $25 (presented by Miss Nellie Newman of Santa Cruz) went to Martin Gambee of Carmel for "Rhythm."

First prize ($60) for oils was won by Paul Lauritz of Los Angeles with a landscape, "Spring Day," the second prize of $30 going to Gilbert Sanchez of Laguna Beach for a still life, "White Pitcher." First Honorable Mention in oils went to Marquez E. Reitzel of San Jose for "Pigeon Point Light-house," the first and second honorable mention in water colors to D. Rudolph Mayer of Santa Cruz and Daniel L. Mandelowitz of Stanford University. The winner of the Purchase Prize, to be awarded by the Santa Cruz Art Association, will be announced later.

Local Group Heads For Price Clinic In Monterey Tonight

A large group of Carmel business men, headed by Harold Nielson, Carmel representative of the Merchants' Committee, plans to attend the price ceiling clinic at Few Memorial hall in Monterey tonight at 8 o'clock.

The meeting, sponsored by Corum Jackson, O. W. Irwin and C. M. Goldsworthy, Price Ceiling Panel of the Monterey Peninsula Rationing board, will be presided over by Perry Reel, Peninsula chairman of the Merchants' Committee. Price officials of the Northern California State Office of Price Administration have come to Monterey to help the local businessmen clear up any problems they might have regarding OPA regulations.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

FAREWELL

They're fighting for a cause bigger than just a football or basketball game. They're going out on the field to be on Uncle Sam's team, and the sportsmanship that was taught to them at C.H.S. will make its appearance often. It's a bigger game they're playing now, but you can be assured they will put all they have into it, and some of the fight that they used on the gridiron, the diamond and the basketball court will go into this fight for freedom.

DeWitt Appleton, Tom Berry, Bill Christerson and Vincent Torras are the young people whom I mean. Frances Passailaigue, Phoebe Merchant and Meta Gossler are others. On Friday, January 22, they received their diplomas which signified they had completed all the work required for high school graduation. Mr. J. W. Getzinger made the presentation of the class, and Mr. Hugh Comstock presented the diplomas.

Another Carmel teacher has been called to the colors; this time it's Donald Craig, popular Spanish and journalism teacher. Mr. Craig has been appointed a lieutenant in the United States Navy, and will soon be leaving to take up his new duties.

Our congratulations and sincere best wishes go with him. — Helen Passadori.

TAKE-ON GREENS

On Friday, January 29, the Carmel basketballers will play host to the Monterey Green quintet. There is to be a lightweight and heavyweight battle. The lightweight tilt will start at 3:30.

The starting players for the lightweight game will be: forwards, Kenny Jones and John Weigold; Dick Uzzell, center; Bill Plein, "Unc" Hillyer or Don Staniford, guards.

Starting the heavyweight fracas will be: sharpshooters, Russell Bohlke and Milt Thompson. The stalwart guards, Bill McKenzie, Jason Harbert and Norvel Yerkes. The center duties are being taken over by Bill Dougherty.

The Padre teams are out on the courts for victory. Proof of that is the league standings. Keep your eyes on the Carmel teams; this looks like our year for sports. Come and support your team. — Ann Casati.

rough, narrow trail. In the convent she was instructed for her first communion by the celebrated Concepcion Arguello who had become a Dominican Sister upon hearing of the death of her Russian fiancée, Rezanov.

She spoke affectionately of her "muy simpáticas amigas," Mrs. John Sutter, Mrs. Mike de Young and Helen Hunt Jackson, with whom she stayed for many weeks while giving material and checking historical data for the book "Ramona"; she loved to display the cherished autographed photograph Adelina Patti had given to her and she recalled vividly the concerts in San Francisco she attended as guest of the great singer. With a twinkle in her dark eyes, she enjoyed telling of seeing Murietta in old San Jose and always insisted to the Mexicans he was a patriot and died, "a perfect gentleman" in his hacienda in Mexico. She saw Carmel Mission in ruins and, having a special devotion to Padre Serra, one of her greatest joys was watching its restoration.

"Vinnie," as she was known to her many friends in Carmel, was a familiar figure at Mass in the Mission and at all of its fiestas. Of late years, confined to her bed, this saintly little figure, always gracious, always gay, left an unforgettable memory of a rare and radiant spirit to those who loved her and to the many visitors who came from all over the state to see her.—E.M., H.D.

Perkins Completes Lovely Madonna for J. Weaver Kitchens

Harry L. Perkins has just completed the wood carving of a madonna, commissioned by Mrs. Weaver Kitchen, which the citizens of Carmel will doubtless have an opportunity to see at the Art Association gallery before she assumes her permanent niche in the Kitchen home.

Carved from a solid piece of mahogany, the figure, together with its pedestal, stands two feet high and represents a mother in flowing robes holding a babe whose soft, dimpled flesh contrasts warmly with the stylized folds of the mother's drapery. It is a hauntingly lovely piece of work on which Harry Perkins has spent months of his spare time, modeling it first in clay, then making a cast from which to model the actual carving.

Anna Michaelis

Funeral services were held Tuesday for Anna Michaelis, widow of the late Justice of the Peace Ernest Michaelis, who died at the Peninsula Community Hospital Sunday night.

She was 72 years old, and for 50 years had been a resident of the Monterey Peninsula, spending her last years in Carmel on Dolores street near First.

Mrs. Martha Zimmerman of Monterey, her sister, two daughters, Mrs. Charles Dietrick, of San Francisco, Mrs. Erna Sumner of New York City, a niece, Mrs. Margaret Perry of Monterey and three grandchildren survive her.

LT. COL. ROBISON

Lions Busy on Book Drive and "Dimes"

Bob O'Brien brought Captain Gerald W. Turley of Washington, and J. W. Getsinger brought Lloyd Miller, Scout leader, as guests to the Lions' Club Tuesday night dinner meeting at Pine Inn.

Turley spoke of the value of the organization to a small community, and Miller thanked the Lions for the first aid kit they had presented to Troop 39.

A session with bingo cards raised $5.50 for the March of Dimes and a sizable pile of books brought by the members added appreciably to the collection of V books in Ken Carleton's store window which already has 150 books for the service men.

It was whispered around the table that there was to be another ladies' night, details to be worked out after the board of directors give their report next Tuesday.

Guadalajara, Mexico, of Aztec Indian parents, and later studied under Gerome and Carriere in Paris, where he graduated from the Ecole Nationale et Special des Beaux Arts.

"Although widely honored as an artist and professor of painting, and sought as a friend by nearly all the great figures of his day, Xavier Martinez was guided by the simplest of philosophies: sincerity, he believed, was the quality in an artist's work which made it live and endure.

"Much of his work was devoted to the California landscape he loved, and his greatest pride was his inclusion as one of the two Californians represented in the 'World of Tomorrow' Hall of Fame in New York, where he shared a niche with Father Junipero Serra. Now, therefore, be it Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, that when this Assembly adjourns today it do so out of respect to the memory of California's great artist, Xavier Martinez; and be it further

"Resolved, that the Chief Clerk be and is hereby directed to transmit a suitably engrossed copy of this resolution to the widow of Xavier Martinez, Mrs. Elsie Martinez, and to his daughter, Miss Micaela Martinez of Carmel, California."

The foregoing resolution, proposed by Honorable Arthur Carlson, assemblyman from Piedmont, California, was followed by a brief speech covering the details of Xavier Martinez' life, and the whole occasion was described by an observer in the capitol at Sacramento as "the most beautiful memorial tribute I have ever witnessed in either houses of the legislature."

The Assembly Day Journal of January 19th closes with the notation: "At 12:27 p.m., on motion of Mr. Sam L. Collins, the Speaker declared the Assembly adjourned until 10:30 a.m., Wednesday, January 20, 1943, out of respect to the memory of the late Xavier Martinez."

Suppose the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea should buy a herd of cows. The school children could volunteer for so many hours of herd duty a month and be given units of credit for every hour so spent. The women of the town could volunteer for so many hours of milking duty and similarly be given units of credit. The child's units and the mother's units could be converted for so many pints of cream which could be taken home and churned into butter. Nobody need work who didn't want butter, and nobody need work any longer than necessary to earn the units for the amount of cream the family needs.

Where would the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea get the money to buy the Town Cows, their feed, and the necessary dairy equipment?

The state of California is very well heeled at the present moment. It needs only a portion of the sales tax moneys that are rolling into its coffers every quarter. A bill passed through the legislature empowering the state treasurer to return a portion of the sales tax collected in Carmel-by-the-Sea to Carmel - by - the - Sea would soon buy all the Town Cows and dairy equipment needed. If Watsonville wanted a town truck garden and Monterey a town poultry farm, here also the sales tax could be diverted back to the town in question. In short, any community would have returned to it as much of the sales tax collected in that community as was needed to finance a town food project.

There it is: Our biennial IDEA, which we consider a lulu since it solves both the food shortage difficulty and what to do about the surplus sales tax.—Wilma Cook.

Agnes Seymour

Miss Celia Seymour of Carmel, well known here as an exhibiting artist and member of the Art Association, received news early Monday morning of the sudden death of her youngest sister, Miss Agnes Seymour, at her home in Harwichport, Massachusetts.

Besides Miss Celia, two other sisters survive: Mrs. Robert R. Grinnell of Madison, Connecticut, and Mrs. Alfred Barber of Hazelton, Pennsylvania. All three of Celia Seymour's sisters have been frequent visitors to Carmel.

mountains of Tennessee, there were more women eager to knit for the Forces than there was money to buy wool. So Carmel's Bundles for America sent $300 and many women will have the satisfaction of feeling that their work, their skill and their eager good-will is supplying warmth and comfort to the American sailors of the Navy and Merchant Marine in the bitter winter of the North Atlantic.

Another misconception has been that England no longer needs the help America has so generously given in the past. People who heard Mrs. Morgan's talk will have realized what a mistake this is and the constant warning of radio commentators about the increase of the German submarine menace shows to us all that Great Britain will need not less but more help if she is to continue to grow the food and make the ships and munitions with which she fights on all the Seven Seas.

Perhaps nothing could be more convincing than this letter to Bundles for Britain from Sir Godfrey Haggard, British Consul General.

"Through your unfailing kindness and close co-operation with us, warm clothing, blankets and other comforts have been given to survivors from torpedoed ships and to men sailing into the North Atlantic winter.

"A case in point will illustrate what I mean. Some days ago a ship arrived here (in New York) with four survivors on board bound for the United Kingdom. They had been rescued in the tropics and had only such thin clothing as they could obtain there. The ship was not stopping in New York more than a few hours and the men had no shore-leave. It only needed a telephone call to your office, and complete outfits of warm winter clothing and overcoats were placed on board the ship as she left the harbor. It is this kind of cooperation that we prize, and for which I should like to express my heartfelt gratitude.

Yours sincerely,
Godfrey Haggard

ROBERT HAYES MONROE

By IRENE ALEXANDER

"I'd picked every officer and man in the outfit from volunteers—and told them we were heading for trouble," says Lieutenant John D. Bulkeley, commanding officer of P. T. Mosquito boat squadron No. 3 whose heroic exploits at the fall of Bataan have been recorded by Stewart Edward White in "They Were Expendable."

Among the 72 young men who volunteered in full knowledge that the chances were 100 to 1 he would not be among the four survivors, was Chief Machinist's Mate Robert Hayes Monroe, son of Scott James Monroe, Carmel Valley resident.

The full story of Machinist's Mate Monroe, Squadron 3, P T M, goes back through nearly one thousand years of authenticated family history, to forbears who antedated the Romans, sported five eagles on their coat of arms and proclaimed their motto "Dread God" with outstanding valor, even in those days. By a strange coincidence, the first American Monroe, Major Andrew, was banished from England in 1644 for fighting the ancestor of young Robert's mother. Since those days, every generation of the Monroe family has contained one or more outstanding figures in the army, navy or diplomatic corps.

Robert Monroe was 18 when he enlisted in the Navy at San Jose, California—the same age at which his ancestor James Monroe served as a captain under General Washington, beginning a career which carried him to the White House as the fifth President of the United States and immortalized his name in the Monroe Doctrine.

Robert's grandmother, Harriet Hayes, well-known author of stories about the Iroquois Indians, and friend of Abraham Lincoln, was a relative of Rutherford B. Hayes, 24th President of the United States.

For his tradition of strong-minded leadership and often hot-tempered fearlessness in war, Machinist's Mate Robert Monroe had also the example of his father, whose thin, wiry figure, keen, level blue eyes and fluff of graying hair are now familiar to the citizens of Carmel. A native of LaSalle, Illinois, Scott Monroe was identified in his youth with the S.B. and A.L. Stone company, one of the pioneer contracting firms of the West, with its headquarters in Oakland—builders of the first government controlled highway in California, and what was then the second largest concrete bridge in the world, near Riverside, as well as the floating railroad bridge across upper Salt Lake. Member of the Pacific Coast Reserve when the first World War broke out, and holding the rank of Captain in the infantry, he first served as deputy food checker under Hoover, with his headquarters at Omaha. When orders came from the War Department to report for duty, he proceeded at once to Chicago, and, hot-headedly impatient at the delay in receiving his credentials as captain, was sworn in as a private—serving in that capacity throughout the war. With the 605th Engineers he went to France and on up to the Marne Valley, then later served at Verdun under an officer in the Department of Criminal Intelligence. It was here that he saved the life of Captain Raoul La Foon, despatch carrier to Marshall Petain and in 1918 was presented by Petain with the coveted Verdun Medal, engraved with those unforgettable words — now so tragic in their significance: "On ne passe pas!"

Robert Hayes Monroe was born in Oakland, California, the only son to carry on the combined Hayes-Monroe name and strain. An outdoor life had been prescribed for his father, in-

IN TRIBUTE TO OTTO BARDARSON

*Mourn him not dead who lives in these young lives
He guided with so resolute a hand—
Radiant in word and deed his spirit thrives,
Adding its truth and vigour to our land.
Not from his word alone: the synonym
Of simple justice—precepts taught and shown,
But stirred by what he was they learned of him,
Adding his inner stature to their own.*

*With quiet strength, unshaken through all storm,
He stood for happy childhood, worked and strove
To keep the air of growing clear and warm
And free from any influence but love.
Surely a life endures by what it gives—
Here in a thousand grateful hearts he lives!*

—DORA HAGEMEYER.

HILLTOP PAEAN

*Together we salute the sky,
The windswept hills and I,
Together look down on the sea,
Together watch each tender tree
Spread its branches and grow strong,
Together hear the wild lark's song.
Each sparkling star, each lazy cloud
Is friend to us, and we are proud.
Men pass each other with a nod,
But we communicate with God!*

—FRANKLIN CUMMINGS.

MINOR POET

*You who have suffered famine all your days,
Hungered and lonely in the crowded mart,
Sustained alone by meagre crumbs of praise
Thrown carelessly—and held against your heart;
You who are poor in all things save your song,
Your minor hoard of beauty frail as breath,
Shall be deprived of even this ere long:
Lost in the major epic sung by Death.*

—MARION DOYLE.

REVIEWS

validated from the army at the close of the war, and so the boy grew up under pioneer conditions, first in Sonoma county and later on the lonesome stretches of the Mojave Desert, 27 miles east of Barstow, where he aided in reclaiming 640 acres for cultivation and rode his pony nine miles to the nearest school.

Two more years were spent in Oakland, and then Scott Monroe moved to Los Gatos with his son and the present Mrs. Monroe, a member of the Bailey family, old pioneers of Berkeley. Here Robert continued his schooling—but his interest was not in books. Machinery fascinated him—he learned all kinds of automobile engines, the construction of batteries—everything connected with engineering. As soon as he could he joined the Naval Reserve at San Jose, and after training with this unit for two and a half years, he enlisted in the Navy.

He was sent to the naval base at San Diego and following a period of training, joined the crew of the submarine Nautilus, serving with her 72 officers and men for four years.

Then for a year and a half he was a member of the crew on the Munson Lung rescue ship for submarines, then served in naval tug duty off the base at New London, Connecticut, where he and other members of the crew escaped drowning during a hurricane which rammed their boat under flood waters against the wharf by crawling into a brick oven. Undaunted by that adventure, he joined the crew of the Destroyer Kane, which won the Navy E for outstripping all requirements.

He was aboard the U.S.S. Kane when it cruised past the mouth of the Carmel River in the winter of 1940—and its unidentified lights were seen by Scott Monroe and his wife as they picnicked on the sands. Their Christmas was made memorable by Robert's unannounced arrival at the door.

At the close of his holiday, he reported back to New York and was sent by the Navy station in Washington to study with a picked group at the Packard Engine College in Detroit. Chief Machinist's Mate Robert Hayes Monroe, 1st class, was now ready to volunteer in P.T. Mosquito Boat Squadron No. 3 under Lieutenant Bulkeley, "headed for trouble."

The rest of the thrilling story of those 72 young heroes has been told by Stewart Edward White in the words of the four survivors. On page 67 of "They Were Expendable" we read how the machine gunners of Lieutenant De Long's boat, Number 31, on which young Monroe served, shot down two Japanese planes in Manila Bay; again on page 78, Scott Monroe was able to learn the fate of Boat 31—how it entered Subic Bay, sank a Japanese ship and was lost. Some of the crew escaped on a rubber raft which floated close to shore before it was destroyed and three men killed by enemy fire. The others, among them Robert Monroe, swam ashore and reported to army headquarters, since there were no longer any navy headquarters on the island.

On May 19th, 1942, Scott Monroe received a letter from the Navy Department, announcing that his son had been "performing his duty in the service of his country in the Manila Bay Area when that station capitulated. He will be carried on the records of the Navy Department as missing pending further information."

There is still another letter, addressed to his father and signed by his superior officer, which with characteristic naval stoicism best expresses the standard by which this young American served his country.

"Robert Hayes Monroe," it reads, "has upheld the name of a long line of distinguished ancestors in more than a commendable fashion."

Gallery Notes

The exhibit of Edward Weston photographs has proved so popular at the Carmel Art Association gallery that its showing has been prolonged two weeks beyond the scheduled closing time. The photographs have been of especial interest to Carmel's neighbors in the Fort Ord medical corps, among the frequent visitors to the gallery being Major Rosen, amateur photography enthusiast, and Captain M. A. Obrenski, both of New York. Captain Obrenski has been making camera studies of Carmel since his arrival in these parts, many of which have appeared in eastern medical journals. He has also photographed the interesting "Head of Lincoln"—wood carving by Harry Perkins now on exhibit at the gallery along with his "Chinese Head" and a mask of Bernard Shaw.

His present address is 924th Eng. Reg. Av. A. A. B., Richmond, Virginia, and he announces that he would appreciate letters from Carmel.

Navy Section Base Enjoys Shell Show

The Monterey Naval Section Base played host last night to the Shell Show, mobile unit produced by Shell Oil Co., Incorporated. The show has recently been playing in numerous Western military camps for the enjoyment of service men. The announcement was made by the Public Relations Officer.

The audience was strictly "military." Only service men stationed at the base and their close friends and relatives were permitted to attend.

The primary purpose of the show is to furnish much-needed entertainment to service men in isolated units. The show was packed full of fun, laughs, music and songs. And if a large attendance and enthusiastic applause by the sailors are any indication of appreciation and enjoyment, the Shell Show was a grand success. The show was also attended by Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. M. J. Martin, Lieutenant and Mrs. Jack Martin, and numerous other officers stationed at the section base.

The cast of entertainers was headed by Patricia Lynn, lovely songstress and Mistress of Ceremonies for the Shell Show. The fun-packed program provided the sailors with an hour of first-rate entertainment by such headliners as Bert Easley, magician; Phyllisita, ventriloquist (with Gabby Redwood); Johnny O'Brien, hot harmonicaist; Lloyd Simpson, novelty pianist, and the aforementioned All-American Girl, Patricia Lynn. Other features of the Shell Show are community singing from souvenir song-books given to the audience, and "The Man with the 8-Ball," novelty surprise finish.

Roland Hayes in Valentine's Day Concert Here

A song recital, at an afternoon hour, by "one of the most superb of living singers" is the next offering of the Carmel Music Society. Roland Hayes, Negro tenor, whose artistry "transcends all physical limitations," "still the greatest of them all," will sing in the Sunset School Auditorium on Sunday afternoon, February 14, at two forty-five o'clock.

An unparalleled career has lifted Roland Hayes to an almost legendary place in the affections of song-recital audiences. He is not only a great recitalist but a great gentleman, and a being of such high nobility as to reach every sensibility of his listeners. Such is the consensus of opinion of critics who have heard the distinguished lyric tenor sing in the various quarters of the globe.

Tickets for the Roland Hayes recital go on sale on Monday, February 8, in the Carmel Land Company on Ocean Avenue. Ticket reservations may be made by mail.

Stationed at Fort Ord, far from home and the traditional birthday cake with candles, Sgt. Then he and Glomske, with sundry companions, celebrated the May birthday all over again Sunday night at the Carmel USO when they cut a cake baked by Jackie Hodges.

THIS IS WHAT YOU DO: 1 Use official "V-Mail" form only. Don't mark your regular mail "V-Mail" as it won't get you this service. 2 Seal letter and address in usual manner. 3 Put on same amount of postage as on regular domestic letters. 4 Drop in any mail box or post office.

THIS IS WHAT HAPPENS: 1 V-Mail gets preference over all other classes of overseas mail. 2 Government photographs your "V-Mail" letter at their expense. (No one else sees it.) 3 Film is flown overseas or goes by fastest available means of transportation. 4 Letter is delivered in a fraction of the time usually required.

Ward, Rector of St. Mary's Church, Pacific Grove. Offertory Solo: "My Hope is in the Everlasting" from Stainer's Sacred Cantata "The Daughters of Jairus"—Soloist: Arch. W. Leonard. Organ selections will include a "Prayer" by Rinck and "O Lord of Hosts" Careless—with Alice Lee Keith at the Organ.

The monthly luncheon of the Woman's Auxiliary will be held on Wednesday, February 10th instead of Wednesday, February 3rd, to avoid conflict with the dates of the Diocesan Convention to be held in San Francisco at Grace Cathedral, February 2 and 3.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 31, 1943

"Life's Unfinished Symphony" will be the sermon there next Sunday morning at the Church of the Wayfarer. This is in recognition of the 146th anniversary of the birth of Franz Schubert. Not only did he compose an Unfinished Symphony, but his career, terminated at 31, was also an unfinished symphony. "My work has been conceived by my understanding of music, and by my suffering," he wrote. What lessons may we learn from his tragic but triumphant career? Margaret Sherman Lea will play selections from Schubert's works on the organ. Visitors are cordially invited. The service begins at eleven.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"Love" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, January 31, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. The Golden Text will be: "Keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life," (Jude 1:21).

Other Bible citations will include: "Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God . . . And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love

Red Cross Bulletins

By FRANCES DOUD

The home of Mrs. Bernard Schulte in Carmel Valley will be the scene for the new Home Nursing class starting Wednesday, Feb. 3rd at 2:30 p.m. Miss Ruth Larsen will be the instructor, and the class will meet each Wednesday at the same time. If you wish to attend this class, please sign up at once at headquarters.

Mrs. C. H. Stearns and Mrs. Olie Goodrich of the AWVS have taken over the running of the Victory Book Campaign since Mary Jepp went to Washington. The campaign, which started in January, is now in full swing and will run until March 5. Sponsored by the American Red Cross, the United Service Organizations and the American Library Association it is designed to collect more and better books for the soldiers, sailors and marines. It isn't a "clean your attic campaign", either. It is intended to build the morale of and provide entertainment and relaxation for service men here and abroad. They are pretty apt to have the same interest as civilians, so any book you want yourself is a good book to give. Technical books published since 1935, travel books, biographies, the classics, any good fiction, mystery or detective stories. What they DON'T want are women's and children's books. No Rover Boys, or Elsie Dinsmore or What a Young Girl Should Know. Give books that are in good condition to stand a good deal of handling and traveling. Because donors did not understand just what was wanted last year in this drive, 3,000,000 of the thirteen million books collected at that time were found unusable. So this time we're telling you. You dwelleth in God, and God in him," (1 John 4: 7, 16).

The Lesson-Sermon will also include the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "No form nor physical combination is adequate to represent infinite Love . . . Divine Love is infinite. Therefore all that really exists is in and of God, and manifests His love," (pp. 256, 340).

can leave your books at the Library, the Red Cross, the USO, at either of the public schools or at Carlton's Grocery. The latter has a window display of books already donated which includes an autographed copy of Van Paasen's "Days of Our Years."

Excerpt from a letter from a Red Cross Field worker on duty with the armed forces somewhere in the South Seas:

"There are several types of natives here—a few pygmies—some dye their kinky hair red, all wear fancy combs and earrings, a few have their faces tattooed from forehead to chin with some red pigment . . . When you pass long lines of them along the trail each one sings out: "Good day," and of course you must answer . . . sometimes it gets a bit monotonous, but it is little enough to be civil to people who are doing so much for us."

Excerpt from letter sent from Carmel to the South Seas if the situation were reversed:

"There are several types of natives here' . . . some dye their hair and some bleach it; nearly all have made it kinky. Most of the women dye their mouths and fingernails to look like blood; many wear earrings and paint on extra eyebrows, first plucking out their own, some of them even glueing on long hairs to the eyelashes, and dusting the whole face with a fine light dust, which often produces a mask-like appearance. When approaching or passing each other on the wide double paths, they shout a greeting sounding like 'Hi-ya.'"

The Production department of Carmel Chapter, American Red Cross is in need of white wool, sock weight (two ply) to complete a quota of 100 knee bands, badly needed by the army hospitals. This will take 35 pounds of wool in all. Scraps can be used and need not be new, as the bands are sterilized before use.

Working Together

HANDLING HOT STUFF! That's the wartime job of Jim and his Dad. Jim is overseas on the firing line. Dad is at home keeping the power flowing to vital industries.

Since Pearl Harbor more than one hundred and fifty men of this company each month have gone into the armed forces of Uncle Sam. Many of these are sons of veteran employees.

These Dads are working with grim determination to step up the production of electric power, because that means the production of more war goods. These Dads are doing all they can to make sure that their sons, and all the other sons wearing the uniform, are the best equipped, the best clothed, the best fed men of any military power in the world.

Today the Dads and their fellow workers in the P. G. and E. ranks are delivering a greatly increased amount of power over two years ago. They have a pride in doing it. They have a pride in the equipment with which they work. There are giant powerhouses in the mountains, a vast network of interconnected transmission lines and distribution lines, together with substations, tracks and tools. All these are geared to take on the increasing demands for more power for war production purposes.

California can be confident these men will keep the kilowatts marching steadily on in war work, that the reserves will respond promptly if they are called upon.

Adult School

Another new Physical Education class has been started at the High School Gym, this time for both men and women. On Tuesday evenings the gym will be open for a mixed group in badminton. Many requests have come from the women of Carmel for such recreation and the class will continue as long as attendance keeps up. Coach Harold Buffa will continue to meet the men on Wednesday evenings. This class has been very successful thus far, with a variety of games being played. Badminton, volleyball and basketball are on the schedule, with instruction in all sports.

With the departure of Donald Craig for the Navy, members of his Tuesday night Spanish class were concerned about the future of the group. The problem has been temporarily solved with the assistance of Mrs. Sylvia Jordan, who has consented to take over the direction of the class. Mrs. Jordan has other classes on Monday and Thursday, both of which deal primarily with conversational Spanish. The Tuesday night group will continue with the emphasis on reading and translation. Anyone who has some knowledge of Spanish is invited to attend. Beginners may attend the Thursday night class, while the Monday night class will continue as usual.

One of the most active classes is the group in Navigation, which meets Tuesday night under the direction of W. E. Viljoen. About two dozen men and one brave young lady have been busily delving into the mysteries of navigation. The class is no longer open to beginners, but those who have had some experience may find the work helpful.

Mr. H. E. Timbers' Basic Mathematics students are about ready to plunge into Geometry. This would be a very good time for those who may need the practical application of geometric principles to begin.

An active group continues to find Mrs. Helen Poulsen's classes very useful. The Stitchery class, meeting on Tuesday evening and Friday afternoon has been increasing in popularity. The practical value of this class is emphasized by all who take the course. The added emphasis on proper nutrition in war time has highlighted the importance of the other class, Nutrition, which meets on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. All of these classes meet in Sunset School's Lunchroom.—R. D.

Two Baer Pictures Sold for Navy Aid

Two Martin Baer paintings have made the Naval Aid Auxiliary of Los Angeles richer by $1,000. Invited among 25 of the best American artists, including such names as Sheets, Benton, Clemens, Fletcher Martin and Curry, to donate canvases for an exhibit held in the Los Angeles County Museum of History, Science and Art under the direction of Richard G. McKinney, Martin Baer gave two records of his North African work.

The first of these, "Danse de Ventre," is a small painting on a wooden panel—the original sketch of a much larger canvas which was purchased in 1929 by the museum as part of its permanent exhibit. Its setting and inspiration were found in the Grand Sahara, where Mr. Baer made a study of "Les Chleux"—a tribe of cave dwellers near the oasis of Colomb-Echar. The second and larger painting represents a group of Spanish children.

Following the exhibit, an auction of all canvases donated was held on December 6th in the Gold Room of the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles and each of the Martin Baer paintings ran the bidding up to $500, all proceeds going to the benefit of the Naval Aid Auxiliary.

Frogs and Guests, Everybody Sings At Mission Ranch

Saturday night at the Mission Ranch Club was especially festive with an almost full moon and chorus of frogs outside and everybody and his cousin inside celebrating the end of the annual January big wind.

In the cocktail lounge Al Sparks and Mrs. Sparks were making the most of his furlough, he singing "From the Halls of Montezuma" by the piano where Bob Harbort presides. Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Rowntree and Hope Hasty were talking to friends in front of the fireplace under the Phil Nesbitt mural of the caballero dealing death to a turkey buzzard with a blunderbus. Drifting about saying hello and hi-ya to acquaintances and neighbors were Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Doud, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Laugenour, Malcolm Tarpee and Mrs. Margaret Black, Mrs. Ruth Cox, Dorothy Orcutt, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Force, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Keller, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Whitney, Mrs. Frances Upton, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Godwin and Mrs. Edna Herlofson.

Out on the enclosed veranda, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Hare were having dinner at one of the lamp-lit tables. A dinner party of eight was made up of a nice blending of army and navy, the WAVES as smart in their blue uniforms as their army officer escorts. Other army groups were dining before joining the big party in the club room where an orchestra was playing for officers and their ladies—eighty of them, dancing or looking on from the vantage point of deep-lounge chairs.

Since the advent of the Dienelt-Brownell management, the Mission Ranch becomes increasingly popular with Carmel people as a place to meet friends and sing together (the repertoire Saturday night ranged from God Bless America to Cuddle Up a Little Closer) and to have dinner on the attractive, informal veranda.

Girl Scout Council To Fight Obscene Literature Here

At a meeting called to order by Audrey Walton Tuesday morning at the Carmel Girl Scout House, the Scout council voted to support a petition to do away with obscene literature on the peninsula.

Discussing the raising of funds for Day Camp, the council decided that the girls themselves should participate. It was announced that Mrs. Barbara Norberg, of the regional staff, would give council training next month.

Objectives set up were: to keep the troops going in the face of the indifference on the part of the majority of the parents, to try and have complete district meetings this year; to organize troop committees for all troops.

Present were: Miss Audrey Walton, Miss Marie Von Kanel, Mrs. Peter Ferrante, Mrs. Don Wilson, Mrs. Zeiss and Mrs. Robert Doerr.

Scout Committee Plans For 1943 Activities

Carmel District committee members of the Boy Scouts of America are now organizing for the New Year. This committee which was ably headed by Everett Smith last year, has O. W. Irwin for the 1943 Chairman. Other members are Ernest Morehouse, Cedric Rowntree, Harry C. Hilbert and Clayton B. Neill. The committee functions as a part of the Monterey Bay Area Council and is responsible for the administrative work in connection with this important youth training activity.

The two Carmel Troops are sponsored by the Carmel American Legion and the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department. The Sea

SUNSET CAFETERIA MENU

MONDAY—Corn custard, spinach, fruit salad, ice cream.
TUESDAY—Spaghetti and tomato, broccoli, carrot and peanut butter salad, baked apple.

WEDNESDAY—Baked beans and corn bread, carrots, molded grape salad, ice cream.

THURSDAY—Porcupines, string beans, raw vegetable salad, jello.

FRIDAY—Vegetable loaf with cheese sauce, stewed tomatoes, prune and cottage cheese salad, ice cream.

Scouts are also again active after a lapse of several months. Carmel is also fortunate in having the only field representative of the Area Council as a resident. Mel Johns has a full time job in coordinating and supervising the work of the various troops in this area. Due to war time conditions it has been an increasingly difficult task to keep all troops supplied with Scout Masters. Scouting depends on volunteer workers and any person desiring to help out in this activity is urged to get in touch with a member of the committee promptly.

Plans are now being formulated for sponsorship of the Cub Packs. A number of boys under twelve years of age have expressed a wish for continuance of Cub activities and it is hoped that plans for these boys can be completed in the near future.—O. W. I.

Martin Gambee's "Sentry" Showing At Metropolitan

"Sentry at Donner Pass," a water color recently completed by Martin Gambee of Carmel, was selected among a total of 532 paintings from more than 14,000 entries in the "Artists for Victory" exhibition now showing at the Metropolitan Museum in New York.

This exhibition is sponsored by the emergency wartime agency, "Artists for Victory, Inc.," representing the 23 leading art societies in New York, at the request of the Metropolitan Museum, as a showing of the work of "the American artist during one of the most critical years in our history." The trustees of the Museum have appropriated, in addition to funds for covering the costs, $52,000 for purchase prizes to be made from the exhibition for the Museum's collection.

Lost Ring—Damaged Shoe—Pine Cone—Everybody's Happy

Last week's issue of the Pine Cone Cymbal carried a classified advertisement concerning the loss of a man's silver ring containing two heart-shaped garnets, and a telephone number at which the owner could be located. Early on Tuesday morning the owner presented himself in the office, happily wearing his restored property on his little finger.

A young lady from San Francisco, visiting Carmel over the weekend for the first time, found the ring, he said. Shortly thereafter, she damaged the heel of her shoe and went to Clarence Wentworth's shoe repair shop on San Carlos street. A copy of the Pine Cone Cymbal offered reading matter to fill the moments while she waited—and there among the advertisements she saw the description of the ring she had found.

The Greeks Didn't Have a Word for It But Whitman Has

Last year the Pine Cone-Cymbal took notice of the word Skittering as used to describe the sport of sliding on the thin film of water left on Carmel Beach by receding waves when the beach is smooth and flat, and the word Skitterboard to describe the boards designed for use in such sliding.

This year the beach, as it does most often in winter and early spring, has assumed a nice firm flatness, tempting to both those who ride horses and those who skitter. There has occurred by means of a piece of rope, a welding between the two activities.

As a man on skis, towed by a horse is said to be ski-joring, why should not a man on a skitterboard towed by a horse be said to be skitter-joring?

Skitter-joring has been seen several times on the beach, occurring not deliberately but as a result of a chance meeting between a skitterer and a horseback rider. And it's fun.

Successful execution requires only a little practice between horseman and skitterboard rider. The horse should be giddapped and the skitter-joring behind it started only when a bigger than usual wave fringe is in. That way, the rider of the horse need not guide the animal out onto the wet sand as is necessary if the start is made on the fringe of a smaller wave. The horse may trot or gallop dryshod where he normally would as the board will naturally slide off to one side on the ebbing wave, coming up almost abreast of the horse.

The Greeks, so far as we know, had no word for this. — Malcolm Whitman.

Mrs. Joseph Le Conte and Mrs. Saxon Pope will pour tea during the social hour which will follow the program.

It Came, Blew a Bit and Passed On, Damage Slight Here

The annual mid-winter gale, arriving last week, caused less damage here than usual.

An awning bar went through the plate glass window at Cooksley's restaurant. Some trees and several fences were casualties to the wind and garden shrubs received a drubbing.

Lights were out for a period in some parts of town.

The street department kept the gutters clear of pine needles and other debris so that the newly cleaned sewers carried off the water without causing difficulty.

Compared with previous storms, this one did not last long enough for the inhabitants really to get started talking about the weather.

Nor were his interests confined to local politics. He served as county chairman of the Republican party and also state chairman, was a member of the state legislature, and was known throughout the state for his service as legislative advisor to the Hotel Men's association, of which he was always an active member, writing a number of articles for their magazine. As councilman and legislator he was honest and outspoken, winning the admiration and respect even of those who opposed him politically.

While a member of the Carmel council, he worked tirelessly to preserve and enhance the physical beauty of the town, and took an especial interest in its fire department. Together with several other citizens he backed the note which provided for its first fire engine.

From the first he took a leading part in the cultural life of his adopted home, serving for years as a Director of the Forest Theatre, encouraging the performance of Shakespearean drama, taking part in many of the plays, and being instrumental in bringing to the town many such artists as Frederick Warde. The doors of Pine Inn were always thrown hospitably open to civic meetings, and in later years he was instrumental in forming the Old Timbers Club, which met once a year by its fireside and exchanged reminiscences.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ida L. Jordan of Carmel; his son, John Larkey Jordan, at present a technician in the Douglas Aircraft company at Manhattan Beach; a sister, Mrs. Abbie L. McReavy of Carmel and a brother, Fred A. Jordan of Oakland.

Funeral arrangements are pending the arrival of his son, John Jordan, and will be in charge of the Paul Mortuary in Pacific Grove.

ance prohibiting the raising of chickens and rabbits in the city limits, these projects will be encouraged.

Following the telephone survey, which is expected to yield data that will help the committee to determine what projects will be the most practical, and what assistance will be of most use to the townspeople, the second public meeting will be called.
